

4 WAYS TO CELEBRATE EMPLOYEE APPRECIATION Day

Employee Appreciation Day is a non-official day and while there's no real authority on what needs to take place, thanking your employees for their hard work and flexibility throughout a very challenging year is a smart move.

Since we are living in such unusual times, it might be a little challenging to decide how to celebrate. Engage2Excel has you covered with ideas that will help you connect with your employees on a more personal level.

1 USE EVERYDAY TECHNOLOGY.

Skip the line of unread emails and send your employees a thank you text or even a video. This simple act of appreciation will let them know they are valued, and that you're just a message away!

2 MAKE RECOGNITION A GIFT.

Let your employees know how important their efforts have been with a personal gift. Transform your remote and on-site employees' workplace into a more comfortable environment with the choice of a ceramic mug, a cozy throw or even a pair of funny socks.

3 SEND A NOTE.

Nothing beats a handwritten card and some snail mail! Ask managers to write a short note of thanks and send to each of their employees' homes.

4 BE SOCIAL.

Most use corporate social media platforms to share the organization's gratitude and thank all employees with a fun, creative post using pictures of employees throughout the organization.

BONUS

TREATS. Who doesn't love food? Since most are still working from home, treat the staff to a nice meal delivered to their door. This can be done using restaurant gift cards or a food delivery platform.
